13	v.)	DECISION RE: MOTION FOR
14	MARIE C. MOAK,)	SUMMARY JUDGMENT
15	Defendant.)

17 The $41,200 judgment from the Justice of the Peace Court's misdemeanor proceeding is 18 for criminal restitution. The dischargeability of the judgment is governed by Kelly v. Robinson, 19 479 U.S. 36, 107 S.Ct. 353, 93 L.Ed.2d 216 (1986), which held that criminal restitution orders
20 are non-dischargeable under 11 U.S.C. section 523(a)(7). Kelly remains good law and has not 21 been overruled by the Supreme Court. It is not for this Court to determine that the Supreme 22 Court would decide the issue differently if presented today.

23 Debtor has argued that there is no final order from the state court. Any further 24 proceedings concerning the restitution order, its amount, its finality or its enforceability are within 25 the jurisdiction of the state courts, not this Court, and should be addressed accordingly. Debtors
26 received their discharge on January 16, 2004; therefore, no relief from stay is required to proceed 27 further in state court.

28 In this case, Debtor filed a motion for summary judgment predicated, in part, on the legal position that Kelly was not controlling and therefore Debtor was entitled to summary judgment.

1 The Court has determined the contrary. Where an issue of law has been determined and further 2 proceedings are unnecessary, the Court may grant summary judgment to the adverse party, even 3 if that party has not sought such relief. Cool Fuel, Inc. v. Connett, 685 F.2d 309, 311 (9th Cir.
4 1982) (When one party moves for summary judgment and at a hearing the record reveals no
5 genuine dispute of material fact, "the overwhelming weight of authority supports the conclusion 6 that . . . the court may sua sponte grant summary judgment to the non-moving party."). That is 7 the case here; the denial of summary judgment is not a final order and will not terminate this 8 litigation even though the essential issue has been decided. To keep the adversary proceeding
9 unresolved would not serve justice, particularly since in the absence of a final order no party 10 would have a right to appeal. Therefore, the Court will grant summary judgment to Defendant as 11 well as deny Plaintiff's motion.

12 So ordered.
